

RGP5571H

Religion & Mental Disorder: Well-being, Coping and Adjustment

The goal of this seminar course is to study

- the role that religion plays in psychological well-being, coping and adjustment,
- religion's biological, psychological, and social relationship to mental disorder,
- its contribution to general adjustment, and
- its role in psychological intervention.

The approach will be both developmental and clinical.